HONGKONG, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1889. MR MacEwen must be complimented on the able speech which he made yesterday in the Legislative Council. It is the first big speech that has come from the unofficial side since he left eighteen months ago. Mr Ryrie, during the interval, has kept up a desultery warlars, but, as he does not take the trouble to come well posted up, he is not always as effective as could be desired. The other members are mostly man of few words and have as a rule been content with registering their votes against the measures they disapproved of. His Excellency had the whole say, and it must be admitted that be did his best to make up for the tagiturnity on the other side. Of course the other officials, with the exception of the Attorney General, are not expected to say much. They are mainly there to make up the Government

They obtained from us a vote of £120,000 for the building of forts, on the understanding that they were to supply them with breech-loading guns. The forts are made; our part of the contract has been faithfully carried out. Not so the other party to the bargain. As a rule they have their own It is not wanted for forts, but extra regiment that is being formation they want. That interpretation may be the letter, but with certainly is not with the spirit of the agreement. We warned the alarmists, when they were shricking about the necessity of a new regiment, that the inevitable result would be that we would be asked to pay And now our warning has come true. We do not altogether see the necessity for such a large addition to our forces. If our forts are well mounted the men we have already got-a regiment and a company-ought to be about sufficient to defend the place against a hostile attack. It is right certainly to provide against probable dangers, but if a nation seeks to guard against all the evils that are within the range of possibility or conceivability, it may consume all its energies in providing | degree the interests of the public. And against imaginary dangers. Of course i the Colony is regarded mainly as a basis for military and naval operations in the Far East, it may be that we are inadequately provided; but then the question arises-Is it fair to ask Hongkong to pay so largely for the furtherance of purely Imperial interests ! Considering the privileges granted to the naval and military authorities, the very valuable ground they occupy ato the serious restriction of the Colony's development, we think that we have made a sufficient sperifica for our own advisable to build houses for certain public, won by Constable McLemban, Not 65 for Betwart while he was administering the defence and for the upholding of British servents, mentioning more particularly the the best scarcat 500 and 500 yards, angold severnment. A lighthouse can of course be laid down there, but from my experience and that of others who have carried out works of this nature. I have come to conclusion that it would be very rath on my part to name any time for the com-pletion of the light. I think it more prudent to admit nt once, that this is one of those matters in which the most experienced would beto the question of audit, I should like to say word. There is no objection to be raised to Imperial audit by any reasonable man. officer does not care two straws who audits the accounts. inasmuch as he has done his audit it is not so much better, as to justify the heavy expenditure it entails, .: While on this point I may say that any successful audit must be done on the apot, and any Imperial audit carried out at home must be a mistake. Let me give one instance of what I mean. When Sir William Marsh strived here he brought in a system of audit reform. The Post Office and Stamp Revenue Office, being a department through which a large number of accounts pass, he sent down a number of questions to be answered and reports to be made with regard to different items. Sheet after sheet of foolscan came, and at last, instead of answering I wrote a letter asking him to come and spend a morning in office. He came down and spent some three or four hours there and went into every item of collection, and he said that he learnt more from that that he ever could have done on paner. Arrangements which appeared to be absolutely monstrous when described on paper he found to be capable of very little alteration or to refer to sums so trivial that it was not worth while to go into more detail, and things that I had hought were done in the most convenient way he pointed out to me and convinced we therefore put them, on possibly a more troublesome, but certainly a more satisfactory basis. Now, all this could not have been discovered had be not gone there, and that is why I say that no audit conducted ten thousand miles from the colony can be really satisfactory, because i is simply done on paper, and it is impos blo for a man with paper answers and paper explanations, who does not see wha is really going ion, to obtain, any idea of the real circumstances of the case. If no other hop, member has any observations to make I have now to move that this Bill be The Asting Colonial Treasurer seconded. Bill referred to the Finance Committee! The whole building was soon enveloped in flames and a stiff breeze spread the fire to the adjacent blocks, which were gutted in an incredibly short space of time. Among others who suffered were, Messrs. Boare, Conway and Brown, Solicitors; Messrs. Claridge and Co., Publishers of the English Mail: several chandlers, Mr. Gostling, architect: Mesers, Schiller, Dosome and Co. and numerous residents whose places were gutted. The damages are impossible to estimate. Mr. William Watson's hotel was only saved by a narrow passage between it and the burning block.
